Citizens debate impact of airport expansion

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Curious about how proposed plans for airport expansion will affect them, a steady flow of Romulus residents made their way through eight hours of public hearings at the Ramada Inn Aug. 9.

The hearing was staged in an effort to answer questions from the public concerning the proposed projects for expansion of Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport, including two new runways, a runway extension, a new terminal and an access road to the south of the airport.

Results of recently completed noise- and environmental-impact studies were also available for review at the hearing. All participants were encouraged to make a formal statement for the official record concerning the studies and airport plans.

Representing Romulus citizens, Mayor Beverly McAnally presented a detailed statement.

A large concern for the city, she said, is the proposed purchase of approximately 604 acres of land necessary for construction of a fourth parallel runway and second access road. Existing homes and businesses west and south of the airport would be affected as well as a golf course and undeveloped land.

The proposal also affects a 90-acre industrial park recently approved by members of the city planning commission, McAnally said.

"Upon completion, that industrial park will have an estimated SEV (state equalized value) of $25 million and will provide hundreds of new jobs," she said.

Total estimated value of existing and proposed developments to be removed from the tax rolls by the acquisition of the property could reach $50 million, according to McAnally.

"We request the amount of land taken be reduced and that compensation in lieu of taxes be provided," McAnally said.

Next, McAnally addressed proposed methods for reducing noise impact in the community. She requested a firm commitment to the proposed "hush house," which would muffle ground noise. A curfew on some flights was also strongly recommended.

McAnally also addressed the proposed realignment of Wayne and Goddard roads to accommodate the fourth parallel runway, insisting the precise plans be reviewed with city officials to make sure they comply with the master plan for Romulus.

Other areas discussed by the mayor included water quality, wetlands, population impacts, jobs and utilities.

Also vocal were the residents in attendance. Two major concerns expressed were the continuous problem of noise and the impact of property acquisitions required for expansion projects.

Jeff Weger, who lives in the northeast section of Romulus, said the hearing did not alleviate his concerns about airport noise.

"In my opinion this is a PR (public relations) blitz," he said.

Weger complained the system of computing noise averages around the airport does not portray an accurate picture of the problem. He suggested a detailed testing of the community during a month-long period.

Weger also criticized the proposed land acquisition for homeowners in the areas most affected by the noise.

"Two thousand people are upset. They're plan helps 100...I think they need to put more of a buffer zone around the airport," Weger said.

Ultimately, Weger concluded, a solution to airport noise would be the development of quieter aircraft. If worn vehicles are replaced with quieter versions, perhaps the noise problem would be reduced in the next 20 or 30 years, he said.

Some residents who have reared families in Romulus expressed their plans to leave the city.

"I can't stand it anymore," said Art Lovain, who has lived near Eureka and Vining for 22 years. "When they improve the airport the noise will be greater."

"We don't know what to do with our house either," said long-time resident Mary Earle.

Earle has lived near Merri-man and Eureka with her husband, Willard, since 1948. In 1972, she said, airport noise became progressively worse.

"You can't have a picnic outside. You can't talk to neighbors outside," she said.

"You can't get your TV loud enough to watch the news," Willard added.

Because the question of home acquisition remains uncertain, the Earles said many of their neighbors do not know

Approximately 390 people attended the eight-hour public hearing Aug. 9 staged by officials of Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport. Area residents and business people were invited to learn about airport expansion plans and to have their opinions entered into the official record. Recently completed noise- and environmental-impact studies were also available. One hearing room was used strictly for people with questions. Mary Vigilante (above), of the airport consultant firm Landrum & Brown, was besieged with questions. In a room used for testimony, Mayor Beverly McAnally (top, left) relayed local concerns. Airport is expected to generate $2.6 billion for local economy

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Approximately $2.6 billion will be pumped into the Detroit area before the year 1995, thanks to the Detroit Metropolitan Airport, in Romulus.

That estimate was revealed in a study of the regional economy by the planning firm of KPMG Peat Marwick and the Regional Science Research Institute.

In 1986, $1.6 billion was tallied for airport-related employee payroll costs, visitor spending and other merchandise. By the year 1995, that figure will increase to the $2.6 billion mark, according to the study.

The results of the study are based on surveys of businesses located on and off the airport premises and of air travelers.

"The report presents impressive evidence that Detroit Metro Airport already has a profound influence on the regional economy," said Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

Among the factors considered for the study was aviation activity. The total number of passengers utilizing the airport is predicted to increase from 9.8 million in 1988 to 15.5 million in 1995, the study said.

The increase in airport usage is proof that a currently planned multi-billion dollar expansion of the airport is necessary, McNamara said. Among the planned additions are two new runways, a runway extension, a new terminal and a south-access road.

Results of the regional economy study were revealed during a public hearing Aug. 9. The hearing was scheduled to gather area citizens' input about the expansion plans.

Also considered in the study was the direct economic impact air travelers and airport workers have on businesses located near the facility and throughout the Detroit area.

Airline support-service businesses - called airport tenants - were also examined, including passenger airlines, passenger charter services, fixed-based operators, baggage-handling services, fueling agents for airline aircraft, in-flight catering services, terminal concessionaires, ground-transportation providers, government agencies and corporate-based aircraft facilities.

Approximately 9,143 people were employed by airport tenants in 1986. Payroll for these people totaled more than $231 million.

Other business expenditures for airport tenants were approximately $223 million.

As for airport visitors, they spent approximately $638 million in 1986 on lodging, meals, alcoholic beverages, admission fees, daily transportation costs, groceries and gifts. The average visitor, the study said, stays in the Detroit area for three or four days and spends $85 per day.

Another topic for the study were businesses located off of the immediate airport grounds but which benefit from the facility. In 1986, travel agencies, cargo airlines and air-freight forwarders tallied $43 million in payroll costs, $15 million in other expenses.

Although nearby hotels were not surveyed, growth in that industry is predicted, as well.

Finally, the report summarized daily airport operations. More than 1,000 landings and takeoffs were reported in 1986, along with 26,848 passengers and 149 tons of cargo, generating $4.8 million for the regional economy.

Flight 255 victims are remembered

The site of the Northwest Flight 255 disaster was aglow Wednesday as mourners staged a vigil and memorial service marking the second anniversary of the crash which killed 156 people.

Organizing the service were members of The Spirit Lives On, support group for those who lost family members to the disaster.

In order to accommodate the mourners, Romulus police officers blocked off northbound Middlebelt Road from Wick to I-94 along with the eastbound entrance ramp for I-94 from northbound Middlebelt. The roads were closed from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Northwest Flight 255 crashed Aug. 16, 1987, as it was departing from Detroit Metropolitan Airport. The only passenger to survive when the jet slammed into the I-94 overpass was 4-year-old Cecelia Cichan.

Today, the crash site on Middlebelt Road is marked with flags, wreathes, plants and a cross. The Spirit Lives On continues to meet on a monthly basis. Locally, 30 people belong to the organization, but several people from out-of-state participate through letters.

390 area residents voice concerns at airport forum

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

More than 390 area residents voiced their concerns about expansion plans at the Detroit Metropolitan Airport, in Romulus, during an eight-hour public hearing Aug. 9.

Officials from the Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport attended the event — staged at the Ramada Inn hotel, in Romulus — to answer questions about a recently completed airport master-plan update, an environmental-impact statement and a study of airport noise.

One of the three meeting rooms for the hearing was devoted to a continuous videotape which detailed airport-expansion plans. Airport expansion is needed because demand has exceeded capacity at the facility, leading to congestion and confusion at existing facilities, the videotape told members of the audience.

Expansion plans for the airport include the construction of a second east-west runway, a runway extension, construction of a south airport-access road, construction of a new south terminal complex and construction of a fourth north-south runway.

Approximately 75 percent of the funding for the $1 billion construction project will be

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

Local traffic order rescinded

A traffic-control order that was to forbid right turns at a red traffic light on all four corners of the intersection of Shook and Goddard was rescinded by city councilmembers Monday.

Councilmembers were informed that the order was not in compliance with state requirements.

The original traffic order was approved by council Aug. 5. "No turn on red" signs, however, had not been installed yet.

Sewer project nets refund

The city of Romulus received a check for nearly $4,900 from the county, refunding money allocated to the "Super Sewer" project of the mid-1980s.

The former sewer-improvement project has been replaced by three separate projects - South Huron Valley, the North Arm and North Huron/Rouge Valley.

A bond issue for the last of the three projects was recently announced to reach the necessary funding level. Therefore the money Romulus allocated to the water project could be refunded.

Bus parking areas paved

School officials approved Monday a $130,016 bid from Cadillac Asphalt Paving Company of Novi to install paving for the bus parking area at the board of education office.

Funding for this project will come from an account reserved strictly for repairs and improvements within the district. The same company was hired to pave the parking lot at Romulus Senior High School in 1988.

Holiday event is planned

Rides, arts and crafts, free entertainment and an endless supply of food are among the features planned for the annual St. Aloysius-Romulus Festival Labor Day weekend.

The festivities begin Sept. 1 and continue through Sept. 4. Additional activities include a raffle with prizes and Las Vegas games.

St. Aloysius Church is on Ozga Road near Neville, south of Goddard Road. For more information about the festival, call 941-5056.

Local group hosts yard sale

Members of the Romulus Right to Life organization will stage a yard sale Aug. 17 through Aug. 19 at 30214 Dorset, in the Oakbrook subdivision. Proceeds from the sale will go to the projects sponsored by Right to Life.

For more information, call 942-9515 or 941-4602.

Clarification

An Aug. 10 article concerning property acquisition to enable proposed airport expansion incorrectly stated new development - the Metro Airport Center - would be affected. Developers claim the site would be near the expanded airport facilities, but their buildings would remain intact.

whether to proceed with home improvement projects.

Tom Williams, a Romulus resident and teacher, said the school district will be hurt by land acquisition because of the loss of taxable property. Even the generation of new developments may not help unless they are constructed on private land he said.

"I hate to see the city get stomped on," Williams said.

Mary Vigilante, representing the airport planning firm Landrum & Brown, said a lengthy approval process is still ahead for all of the airport proposals. At least three months will be needed for airport officials to "pull together" all of the public statements and prepare an official response.

Teen health center nets $100,000 grant

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

The controversial teen health center will become a reality as officials of the Michigan Department of Public Health approved a $100,000 grant for the project.

The center to be opened in a Romulus Senior High School classroom will be funded by the health department from Sept. 1, 1989 until Sept. 30, 1990.

Members of a planning committee submitted the funding application in the spring after receiving approval from members of the board of education.

Services to be offered at the center will include basic medical services, immunizations, hearing and vision screenings, Medicaid screenings, pregnancy testing and general counseling.

School officials have been asked to provide the health department with more detailed planning information for the health center as plans progress.

School officials will be expected to set timelines for implementing the plan.

Health department officials also offered suggestions such as encouraging school dropouts to use the center, developing health education programs for seventh- and eighth-graders and reviewing the space need for the proposed examination room.

Now that the grant for the health center has been secured, planning for the project can progress, said Evelyn Hopewell, chairwoman for the Romulus Adolescent Health Advisory Committee.

Committee members have been exploring the health needs of Romulus teens since 1987 with the help of planning grants from the state health department. Representatives of the committee include teachers, parents, school officials and members of community service organizations and churches.

Health advisory committee members, through study, have concluded that a lack of money and transportation prevents Romulus teens from receiving proper medical treatment. A school-based health center was seen as the best method for solving these problems.

A group of parents, however, protested moves by the committee because they were concerned that the health center would become a source for birth-control devices and abortion referrals for young people. The parents accused committee members of interfering with their rights as parents.

Planning committee members, as well as school officials, maintain family-planning services are not needed and will not be provided at the clinic.

Concerned parents are being encouraged to involve themselves in developing a parental consent form and other specific programs for the center.

Committee members have begun work on a consent form and are finalizing plans for the location of the center and personnel.

"By the end of September we should be working," Hopewell said.

Pleased with the recent grant approval, Hopewell recognized the efforts of project director Kate Conway, along with RAHAC member Judy Cavell, health services manager for Heritage Hospital.

"They have worked tirelessly," Hopewell said.

Citizen group considers uses for vacant school

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Hoping to map out the future of the old South Junior High School building on Olive Street, a committee of residents and district officials staged their first meeting Aug. 9.

Members of the recently established committee spent a considerable amount of time sharing their favorite memories of the the worn building. Several members attended the school during the 1930s and 1940s.

When they moved on to more serious business, committee members were confronted with issues of asbestos removal and zoning requirements.

"We can't just put up a pop-sicle stand there," Superintendent William Bedell said after the meeting.

School buildings are zoned for public use and that issue must be addressed, he said.

Nevertheless, suggestions for the building ranged from apartments to a shopping mall.

School officials were more optimistic, however, about the promise of city councilman William Wadsworth to approach other councilmembers about using the building as a recreational facility.

Whatever happens to the building, it will not be used by the school district again, Bedell said.

"The school district no longer needs it for K through 12, and we have no intention of putting money into it," he said.

Committee members will meet again Sept. 13 with an architect and community development director Dennis Oakes.

Council addresses issues of hazardous-waste transport

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A resolution opposing the transport of hazardous chemicals through Romulus via trains was amended by city councilmembers Monday to include specific safety measures.

The new resolution was proposed by Margaret LeDuc, coordinator of emergency management for Romulus. The original resolution was approved last month.

"I recommend another resolution that would identify specific problems that railroad companies could address," LeDuc said.

A detailed list of safety measures are included in this re-

I think it's (a reduced speed limit) inviting railroad crossing to be tied up longer.

— Ellis Pennington
Romulus councilman

solution. The measures include:

- A chemical information hotline number to be stenciled on all cars carrying chemicals, plus identification numbers placed in the cars for those responding to emergencies.
- Proper loading of trains.
- Proper spacing of chemical cars to prevent dangerous reactions if an accident was to occur.

- Protective devices such as head shields and thermal insulation installed on jumbo tank cars.
- Establishment and enforcement of rules to regulate weight distribution of long trains to prevent shifting resulting in accidents.

- Rail cars carrying liquid to be equipped with equipment to help prevent movement. Continuous movement of liquid may cause a rail car to lurch forward, causing an accident.

- Chemical manufacturing companies, railroads, trucking and shipping companies and airlines would provide equipment training sites, manuals and instructors for hazardous material incident training.
- Speed limits would be maintained or decreased to 25 mph within city and township limits.

Many of these safety measures are based on a state subcommittee report on railroad safety, LeDuc said.

Most councilmembers were supportive of the resolution, but questioned decreasing train speed limits.

"I think it's inviting railroad crossings to be tied up longer," Councilman Ellis Pennington said.

"We have a compound problem. Do you want a quick train or a safe train?" Councilman Noah Bergeron said.

LeDuc said the resolution leaves the speed limit reduction as an option. The current limit is 35 mph.

The resolution will be forwarded to several federal and state lawmakers along with CSX Transportation, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the Federal Transportation Board and all surrounding communities.

A proposal to add library personnel at the Romulus Senior High School was tabled Monday by members of the board of education.

The proposal was offered in response to a warning from the University of Michigan regarding accreditation of the high school. The school was placed on probation for the 1989/1990 school year due to a shortage of library staff.

One librarian and one aide currently operate the high school library.

Accreditation officials have threatened to not renew the school accreditation during the 1990/91 school year unless a second librarian is hired.

Board members considered a proposal which would allow for a "3/5 teaching position" for the library. Three English teachers who are in the classroom five hours a day would devote one of those hours to the library. A fourth teacher would be hired to make up for the classroom time. This proposed solution would cost the district approximately $30,000.

Board members, however, questioned if they could save money by hiring a second part-time library aide instead of enlisting the help of teachers. Superintendent William Bedell agreed to research this idea and present his findings to the school board in September.

The current probationary status of the high school will not hurt college-bound students, Bedell said. He said the high school has another accreditation through the North Central accreditation agency.

Formerly, Bedell said, students were excused from college placement exams if they came from an accredited high school. Now, most students take the tests regardless. He doubts an accreditation loss would prevent a college from accepting a qualified student.

"But why take the chance?" he added.

District officials are determined to meet the accreditation demands, Bedell said.

ers of the support group. The memorial service offers people a time to pause and reflect and to have support, she said. Aug. 16 will always be a painful day, wherever they are, Gleason said.

"I don't think those memories have ever left. It's always with all of us," Gleason said.

The value of continuous mourning for those killed in the crash, however, has been questioned by several city officials.

When support group leaders applied for the no-fee permit for the vigil, two city councilmembers voted to deny the request. A third councilmember abstained.

"It's been two years past when the airplane went down," said councilman Noah Bergeron. "The intersection of Middlebelt and I-94 is not the place to hold the service. We just don't need that kind of cemetery site in our community."

The memorial display at the crash site must be especially frightening for the people who drive past it regularly to reach the airport, councilman Fred

Junior Block said.

"I'm not a callous man...I'm opposed to this kind of thing year after year after year...We don't need to be reminded," Block said. "I know it was a tragedy. Life has to go on."

Councilman William Wadsworth is employed by the airport division of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department. He said another aircraft crash resulted in the death of three people at Detroit Metropolitan Airport shortly before the Flight 255 incident. Memorial services have not been staged for the victims of that crash, Wadsworth said.

granted by the Federal Aviation Authority. The remaining funds will be from an existing tax on airline tickets.

Federal officials will also provide approximately 75 percent of the funding for noise-reduction plans at the airport and to pay for environmental-impact concerns. The ticket use-tax will provide remaining funds.

Airport officials expect to begin work on the east-west runway and runway extension in 1990, the south access road in 1992, the fourth parallel runway in 1993 and the southern terminal in 1995. All of the proposed airport projects are subject to FAA approval.

The public hearing last week was required by FAA regulations. Airport officials must document a response to all concerns addressed during the hearing. Deadline for the response is Aug. 31.

A similar public hearing was staged last winter. Approximately 175 residents attended and voiced their concerns about airport-noise levels.

Not all residents who attended the recent hearing or the one last winter testified.

During the hearing, Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally presented a statement requesting that county officials replace the loss in tax base to her community by relocating existing facilities or bringing in new investments.

Other topics discussed by airport officials focused on the three airport documents, the noise-compatibility study, the environmental-impact statement and the update to the master plan. Highlights of the discussion included:

- The environmental-impact statement, a lengthy document available at the hearing, reviewed the effect on the environment the expansion will have. Twenty-one environmental factors were considered.

Expected to be minimally affected by the expansion are air quality; solid waste; historical, architectural and archaeological structures; cultural facilities; energy sources; light emissions; construction and surface transportation.

- Also available for review at the hearing was a long-awaited noise-compatibility study. The study details ways to reduce airport-noise impact in surrounding communities, including Romulus, Taylor, Inkster, Westland, Lincoln Park, Allen Park, Wayne, Belleville, Dearborn and Dearborn Heights.

Among the proposed ideas was the purchase by the airport authority of homes in the highest-noise areas. Homeowners in less noisy areas would have the option of being provided with noise protection in their homes — such as insulated windows — or purchase assurance, which would ensure that airport officials would purchase their home if the owners decide to sell.

All homeowners eligible for the home-purchase offer, noise protection or purchase assurance reside in the city of Romulus. The eligibility area was detailed on a map available during the public hearing.

Additional noise-reduction suggestions included the use of dirt from runway construction to place earth berms (mounds) in east, west and south sections of the airport to block ground noise. The plan also recommended noise-related landing fees, noise monitoring, joint development of airport property and restricted ground movement of aircrafts.

The suggestions are expected to reduce noise impact by 39 percent initially. In the long run, noise impact will be reduced by 55 percent.

Drug-fighting funds offered

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Assistance in the battle against drugs may soon be available to local organizations in Wayne County.

Wayne County Commissioner Jackie L. Currie (D-Detroit) proposed the program which is now being considered by members of the committee on public safety and judiciary.

"I'm sure there are a lot of organizations out there," Currie said.

The proposed program would make it possible for organizations to receive funding for specific projects designed to stop drug use. Leaders of various groups would be invited to submit project proposals for consideration by the county commissioners.

Areas of drug education and prevention are to be specifically targeted through the program, Currie said.

Money to finance the grants would come from drug-forfeiture funds - money confiscated as a result of drug raids, Currie said. Commissioner Currie hopes to obtain half of all money confiscated for the programs, aimed at children.

"I'm concerned about the kids," Currie said. "That's my top priority."

The program would be implemented by the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, and an advisory board that has yet to be appointed would oversee the program.

If implemented, Currie said she would not let the program suffer the same problems as those in Detroit. A similar program implemented by the Detroit police is reportedly not being funded despite large allocations by the city council.

"It won't happen at the county level because we're going to have an ordinance and procedures," Currie said.

One group which Currie believes would benefit from such a program would be the Guardian Association - a county-wide group of police officers who work in the schools to distribute information about drugs.

PLAN WELL FOR YOUR PREGNANCY

By Randall T. Kelly, M.D.

Many couples start planning for their child's health during pregnancy. Although good prenatal care is very important, the best thing you can do for your baby's health is plan your pregnancy before it occurs.

For women with chronic health problems, such as insulin-dependent diabetes or high blood pressure, planning ahead for a healthy pregnancy may be particularly important for determining the outcome.

for women with other highly evident problems, such as kidney disease and autoimmune diseases.

It is extremely vital for women with these conditions to be in the best of health before becoming pregnant. Any one of these conditions can cause significant damage to a fetus in the first few weeks of development, when many women may not even know they are pregnant.

HEALTHY WOMEN CAN BENEFIT, TOO

Although preconception counseling is critical for women with health risks, it also can benefit those who are basically healthy.

For example, women who smoke, take any type of medication, drink alcohol, are exposed to environmental hazards, or are unaware of a health problem can knowingly put their unborn child at risk in the early stages of development.

With preconception counseling, a couple can become aware of the problems that may result from these risks and take steps toward eliminating them.

PRECONCEPTION COUNSELING

If a couple is thinking about attempting pregnancy for the first time, or if the mother-to-be has any health problems, preconception counseling is desirable. This is a consultation with your physician that takes place just before you want to try to become pregnant.

In the past, preconception counseling was strictly for women with chronic health problems. However, there is a movement within the field of obstetrics toward preconception counseling for all women in order to try to eliminate risks for the fetus early on.

Besides diabetes and hypertension, counseling is very important

Although public attention has been focused on the potential hazards of the "Death Train," numerous dangers exist along shipping routes - rail, truck and air - throughout western Wayne County.

The derailment of a Midland-bound chemical train, headed for Dow Chemical Co., released toxic fumes and resulted in evacuation of residents North of Freeland, Mich.

Hazardous materials are shipped on almost every train which criss-crosses western Wayne County, according to Joseph Davies, Van Buren Township police chief and chairman of the Mutual Aid Task Force. In addition, shipments of hazardous products are conveyed by trucks and sometimes, shipped in vans and private vehicles on a daily basis.

Cameron McNally, a public safety instructor specializing in hazardous materials, said that accidents involving rail cars gain public attention because of the large volume of hazardous material they contain, compared to that which could be hauled by a truck. Derailments or other accidents pose particular problems for firefighters and hazardous material specialists because of the quantities involved, he said. Usually a rail site is a remote one, which is more difficult to gain access to, but limits the number of people directly involved. However, he added, rail tracks also run through some highly populated areas. "In this area, I would speculate that the most common hazards would result from chemical spills," McNally said. Hazardous chemicals commonly shipped through the area are liquefied petroleum gases (gasoline, butane and propane), chlorine, ammonia, sodium hydroxide (caustic soda) and methyl chlorosilanes (used in silicone products). "Van Buren Township has been listed as one of the most potentially hazardous communities in the state. We have I-94 and I-275, both with trucks hauling hazardous materials - some on the way to the only toxic landfill in the state, which is located here," Davies said.

Davies said some hazardous substances are transported by private vehicles to laboratories or hospitals, often without special identification to warn of their hazards.

In the event of a hazardous spill - which could come from any of the transportation means - each community would activate its Emergency Preparedness Plan, Davies said. The emergency operations center would be activated, and a first-hand evaluation of the situation would be made. If resources are not available locally to handle the emergency, the hazardous materials unit would be alerted.

Each community has police officers and firefighters who have been trained in hazardous materials control. For example, Van Buren Township has six firefighters and a police sergeant who have completed a 24-hour course in hazardous materials plus two firefighters who have had extensive training with the Western Wayne Hazardous Materials Response Team.

At one time evacuation was considered to be a proper step in an emergency situation, McNally said, but there has been some re-thinking on the advisability to send people away from their homes.

Ambulance services are studied for improvement

Western Wayne County communities are studying their current levels of emergency medical services and considering the need for upgrading some ambulance services.

In a report to the Conference of Western Wayne, Audrey Seay, executive director of Health Emergency Services, outlined the three types of ambulance service:

- Advanced life support, said to be the highest level of service available. It involves paramedics who can start intravenous fluid, defibrillate and administer drugs;
- Limited advanced life support, the middle level of service, which involves EMT specialists who can start IVs and intubate, and
- Basic life support, which provides cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, oxygen and basic first aid.

Seay told the CCW members that out-Wayne County has nine ALS units, compared to 15 units in the past. The LALS has units in Garden City, Dearborn Heights and the Metro Airport fire department. Most of the remaining communities in the county provide basic life support services.

Reduction in the number of available units resulted from the decrease in Medicare and Medicaid payments to the ambulance services, Seay said. Reimbursements are now based on 80 percent of the average cost of all services, according to new federal rules. Therefore, if a private ambulance service charges $100 for a service and the same service is provided free by a community, the private ambulance service would be reimbursed at 80 percent of $50, or $40, she said. The resulting reimbursement cut-backs for some of the "bread and butter" services provided by the private ambulance firms has caused it to be economically unfeasible to operate at the prior level, Seay said.

In her informational report, she noted figures from a 1987 ambulance survey revealing that Sumpter Township and Belleville, served by the Huron Valley Ambulance Service, have ALS, and Romulus, served by Taylor Ambulance, also has ALS.

Only Wayne and Metro Airport have automatic defibrillation, which enables paramedics to use electric shock to restore proper heart beats. Dearborn Heights and Garden City were listed in the report as slated to add the automatic defibrillation in the future.

"Advance life support is the state of the art and is the level of prehospital care that is most desired," Seay said in her report. "ALS can bring the assistance of the emergency physician, including drug therapy, to the patient in the field through the radio and the skills of the paramedic."

Seay said the report was presented to provide information to individual communities to enable them to evaluate their needs and level of emergency services. No action was slated to be taken by the CWW.

Curbing crime

Midyear police numbers show improvement

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Several local communities showed a decrease in major crimes for the first six months of 1989.

In statistics released last week, Romulus and Wayne showed the most significant decreases in major crime.

"We've cleaned up the north side as far as street sales (drugs) go," said Fred Dansby, Romulus police chief. "People are going out. Senior citizens are going for walks, and they couldn't do that before."

Compared to the first six months of 1988, Romulus had a 54-percent decrease in rape, a 26-percent decrease in burglary, a 12-percent drop in larceny, a 27-percent drop in auto theft and a 52-percent drop in arson.

Dansby, who has been in Romulus for six months after two years as police chief in Westland, said he could not take credit for the decrease in crime, because police officers cannot stop people from committing crimes.

He said, however, that his force has made a concentrated effort to stop crime in the most troublesome areas of the city.

"We've done some things over here to cut down on the street crime and narcotics," Dansby said.

In Wayne, there was a less dramatic trend with a 10.6-percent decrease in crime overall.

"We are pleased again that crime remains below the past two years," said Fred Stafford, director of public safety in Wayne.

But while Wayne experienced an overall decrease in crime, assaults increased 46 percent and robberies increased 67 percent.

In Belleville, the crime level remained low. The city experienced 82 major offenses, including 67 larcenies.

But while he noted that Belleville is a small community, Dockter said there is enough crime in surrounding areas that it is not impossible for it to come to Belleville.

"We're very proud of the numbers," Dockter said.

In Canton Township, unofficial records through April showed few trends. Canton crime records are not up-to-date, according to public safety director John Santomauro, because of staffing problems.

The only major difference in Canton crime since 1988 was in the area of criminal sexual conduct. According to the unofficial statistics, there were 15 cases of criminal sexual conduct through April, compared to only one during the same period in 1988.

County food service offered

The Wayne County Summer Food Service Program is being offered at several locations. The program offers free nutritious lunches for children.

The program is free for all youths younger than 19 years of age as well as certain handicapped adults, regardless of income.

The program will be offered at the following locations.

- Canton Commons, 1568 Stacey, Canton Township - 11:15 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. through Aug. 18.

- Salvation Army, 9451 S. Main Street, Plymouth - 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. through Aug. 18.

- Baylor Elementary School, 28865 Carlisle, Inkster - 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. through Aug. 18.

- Meek Elementary School, 29807 Parkwood, Inkster - noon to 2 p.m. through Aug. 18.

- Woodson Elementary School, 29665 Pine, Inkster - 11:15 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. through Aug. 18.

- YWCA of Western Wayne County, 26279 Michigan Ave., Inkster - 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. through Aug. 18.

- Romulus Civic Center, 11495 Wahrman, Romulus - 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. through Sept. 1.

- Wayne Metro, 35408 Beverly, Romulus - 10:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. through Sept. 1.

- Jefferson Elementary School, 32150 Dorsey, Westland - noon to 2 p.m. through Aug. 25.

- Vandenberg Elementary School, 32101 Stellwagon, Wayne - 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. through Aug. 25.

1989 city-by-city midyear crime report

Overall crime numbers for 1989 in five of six communities served by the Associated Newspapers have declined approximately 10 percent, compared to the same period last year. What follows are crime numbers in each community.

For Romulus, Belleville and Wayne, numbers are for the first six months of 1989. (However, 1988 statistics for Belleville were not available. Thus, the area total does not include Belleville.)

For Canton Township, numbers - which are labeled as unofficial - are for January, February, March and April.

For Westland, numbers are for all of 1988 and are compared to all of 1987. 1989 figures are not yet available.

Communities are coded by BE (Belleville); CA (Canton Township); RO (Romulus); WA (Wayne); and WE (Westland).

Youth needs eyed in new county program

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

A new division of Wayne County government has been established to oversee youth services.

The Youth Services Division of the county Department of Health and Community Services was recently created to more effectively deal with issues such as abuse and neglect, foster care and youth home services.

The new department is a continuation of services already offered, but with a staff and greater support for director Dan Mulhearn, according to Wayne County Commissioner Bernard Kilpatrick (D-Detroit), a member of the committee on health and human services.

Funds for the new division were the result of many battles among commissioners which kept Mulhearn waiting and wondering, Kilpatrick said.

"I would say that he's (Mulhearn) done an excellent job so far," Kilpatrick said. "I think he knew the money was going to come eventually, but he wanted a staff."

With $199,000 allocated for this year, Kilpatrick said, Mulhearn will have an assistant, a secretary and several computers to help maintain the department. Funds for Mulhearn's position had been coming from the officeholder's fund of county Executive Edward McNamara, Kilpatrick said.

With the establishment of the youth division, Kilpatrick said, county officials may be able to deal more effectively with the state government, which often shares program costs with the county.

Last year, Kilpatrick said, an audit showed the county lost as much as $3 million because of cost-sharing confusion with the state.

"Now we have a department that can really deal with the state in terms of coming to grips with that problem," Kilpatrick said.

The issue of abuse and neglect facing Wayne County youths is one of the most pressing problems, Kilpatrick said, but it is important not to overlook problems which result from foster care and youth home difficulties.

Popular parks require added funds

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Additional funding will be needed to support the increasingly popular Wayne County parks, according to officials.

The budget for the county parks system is expected to nearly double during the next three years, according to Hurley Coleman, county parks and recreation director. He referred to the expected increase as an important investment for the county.

"The return on the investment in parks and recreation is not always measured in terms of dollars and cents, but in terms of the quality of life of the people," Coleman said.

The parks department budget for 1988 was approximately $2.8 million, Coleman said. During the next three years, he expects that figure to increase to approximately $5 million.

One reason for the increase, Coleman said, is that the parks are responding to increased use by becoming more service-oriented, accommodating greater demand by assisting with the events such as family reunions and picnics.

"I think that people are inclined now more than ever to find their recreation opportunities close to home, which is a national trend, and we are just a beneficiary of that at this point," he said.

Quality parks have been a priority of county Executive Edward McNamara, according to Coleman. As a result, the county has been able to offer more effective park patrols providing visitors with increased security, Coleman said.

Improved security measures, Coleman said, have brought more people to the parks making it necessary to provide better services and facilities.

"We are already well below the per-capita standards for recreational funding, as it relates to the national and state standard," Coleman said.

Additional funding, if approved, will help fund programs such as antique car shows and an olympic training run.

It will also help fund the operation of a new canoe livery, currently being built along the Rouge River at the Nankin Mills Recreation Area, in Westland.

Because the Rouge River flows through most county parks, Coleman said, it will increasingly become part of the recreational attraction of the county.

To help secure funds for the park system, Coleman said he will appeal for corporate funding.

2 local people
named to board

Two local residents have been named to the Wayne County Foster Care Review Board. Dorothy Luckie, of Inkster, and Kristina McManaman, of Westland, will meet monthly with other board members to review the temporary placement of children in foster care homes by officials of the Wayne County Probate Court Juvenile Division.

Bills provide stiff sentences

A set of bills pending in the state House Judiciary Committee will provide tougher prison sentences for those who commit repeated violent crimes, according to Michael Hodges, Gov. James Blanchard's legal advisor. Passage of the bills will be sought this fall. The bills were sent to the committee in the spring for discussion. The bills will mandate life sentences without parole for repeat violent offenders. If made law, it would not affect those currently jailed. "But, if the repeat violent offender was released and committed another crime, then they could be affected by the law," Hodge said. "We are hopeful the legislature takes action on this by September. There are about half of the members of the House who have signed on as cosponsors of the bill. It appears there is every indication the Senate and House will approve it," Hodge said.

Elderly program
expansion planned

Members of the Wayne County Committee on Health and Human Services have approved a grant that will expand the older workers program in the county office of aging. The program provides job training and assistance in job hunting for elderly residents. Available for the expansion is $142,000, which will allow the program to continue through June 1990.

Work program expansion eyed

The Wayne County Alternative Work Force Program - an alternative to incarceration of criminals who have committed non-violent crimes - may be expanded if county funds are approved. Members of the Wayne County Committee on Public Safety and Judiciary are seeking state funding for expansion of the program.

Romulus resident Liz Greca (above and far right) and her horse Tubby were among the participants in the 1989 Wayne County Fair. Greca entered the horse-judging competitions. The fair was staged at the county fairgrounds, in Belleville. ANP photos by Werner Slocum/staff photographer

'Fair-ly good turnout' Thousands call annual event a success

By CHRISTINE McCLOSKEY
ANP Special Writer

Approximately 20,000 people had the chance to see Robinson's Racing Pigs last week. Those 20,000 could also have opted for a peek at "Louie the Lightning Bug" and "Pockest the Clown."

And, of course, everyone who attended the 43rd annual Wayne County Fair was eligible for an entire day of fun-filled, ageless excitement, according to fair organizers.

There was no doubt about it. Much to do and see was available at the annual fair, staged at the county fairgrounds, in Belleville. Adults enjoyed many of the exhibits and shows. The children were fascinated by just about everything.

The fair opened officially at 8 a.m. Aug. 9 with the horse-judging competitions. Other events of interest that day were the Miss Wayne County Fair Queen Pageant and Midwest All Pro Wrestling.

Aug. 10 featured performances by the Michigan Bell Clowns, "Pockets the Clown," "Louie the Lightning Bug," Robinson's Racing Pigs and McGruff the Crime Dog.

In addition to the shows for kids, some lucky little people were able to ride with members of the Wayne County Sheriff's Mounted Division.

Garreth Wolfe, 9, of Westland, was a bit leery when officer Gary Warner offered him a ride. But he was all smiles after being placed on the back of a stately horse.

Garreth's 8-year-old sister, Andrea, anxiously waited for her brother to finish his ride so that she could enjoy her turn.

The Wolfes were the first children to ride the horse. Soon, other wide-eyed youngsters began to congregate near the mounted division, in hopes of a horse-back-ride offer from one of the officers.

On Thursday evening, participants in the Wayne County 4-H youth program staged their livestock auction.

Area youths who participate in the 4-H program spend months raising their livestock. Each youth raises his or her own animal. In the process, youngsters learn record keeping, animal health and feeding and, above all, the responsibility of raising a market animal.

The auction offers the young trainers a chance to show off their hard work and patience in the form of neatly groomed, healthy market animals, according to 4-H workers.

In addition to 4-H, area youths contribute to the success of the fair in several other ways.

Kevin Howley, 14, of Canton Township, raises rabbits. The county fair was a chance for him to show off Roger, a Wetherland Dwarf, and Loreal, a Hotot Dwarf.

Loreal is named because of her coloring. She is pure white and has black rings around her eyes, which make her look like she is wearing mascara.

Howley, a natural at raising the rabbits, cradled his docile animals and invited onlookers to hold and pet them.

Sandra Dear, the 4-H leader in Wayne County for rabbit raisers, said that a great amount of hard work goes into training and raising the rabbits. Youths meet once a month for lectures and spend approximately one hour each day for three months training the rabbits.

The youths also attend a showmanship class to better learn how to present their trained animals.

Nevertheless, rabbits were not the only animals that the 4-H youths entered in the fair competitions. The youths also proudly displayed cows, pigs, lambs, goats and even guinea pigs.

Some fair participants elected to show off their handiwork and, of course, baked goods.

The myriad of items and services available in the merchant's area — whether it was a set of encyclopedias, a knitting machine or a chance to have one's eyeglasses cleaned — gave shoppers a treat.

There were also some special events at the fair this year, including comedy acts by Gary Thison (sponsored by Roxy's Looney Bin Comedy Club, in Belleville), a concert by Jodi Bon Jovi (sponsored by Chartbuster Video, Belleville) and a car-crushing show featuring "Heartbeat" and "Bigfoot."

And what would a county fair be without the usual shows, crafts, agricultural treasures, stuffed animals, games, mirrors, carnival rides and trinkets?

Sure, the trinkets didn't compare to Robinson's Racing Pigs. But they were just as important to the success of the 1989 Wayne County Fair.

The county fair was a circle of good fun for Billy Lance (above), 6, as he took a whirl on the amusement rides last week. The fair was a time for show and tell for Eric Waggy (right, top photo) and 16-month-old son Matthew. The two examined the rabbits exhibit. Westland resident Gareth Wolfe (right, center photo), 9, enjoyed a ride on a horse used by members of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department mounted division. More than 20,000 people attended the county fair, which was staged Aug. 9 through 12.

Earthly paradise: Area gardener grows yard of tranquility

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

One is nearer God's heart in a garden, than anywhere else on earth

If the quote from poet Dorothy Gurney is correct, then there must be a bit of paradise on Bedell Street in Belleville — just around the corner from Huron River Drive.

The backyard of the Young residence is filled with an array of trees and flowering plants, intersected by garden paths and populated by wildlife — all in a peaceful, park-like atmosphere.

David Young refers to the garden as "a labor of love," but also as "a lot of hard work." The Belleville resident spends approximately two-and-one-half hours moving and two hours trimming the large rear parcel, plus additional hours maintaining the fish pond.

Eight years ago Young began his garden project by planting 60 blue spruce trees as a privacy screen around the perimeter of the property. Originally, he had planned to erect a privacy fence, but, after purchasing the material, discovered that the fence didn't comply with the city ordinance.

"It turned out to be a good thing, because the trees are a much more attractive screening than a fence would have been," Young said. "With all of the trees, our backyard resembles a park more than a city lot."

Over the next few years, the garden began to evolve with plantings of tulips, daffodils and hyacinths dominating the spring season, and a variety of roses, hibiscus, peonies and other flowers emerging in the summer months. So far, there are no special fall plantings — only the changing color of the leaves against the background of evergreens, Young said.

Beds of alysium border the lawn and walkways, and water lilies and floating hearts peak through the surface of the fish pond. Five park benches — two of them antiques — allow visitors to rest while they observe the birds and blossoms and the weeping cherry tree and contorted filbert tree. Visitors listen to the tinkling of the wind-chimes placed around the yard and watch the activity at the five birdfeeders placed around the property.

"Each morning I take my coffee cup and go from bench to bench to look at the yard. It changes everyday," Young said. "There's always something different in the garden every day from Memorial Day until after the first frost."

The garden was the setting of the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Young's parents, who also reside on Bedell Street.

Two years ago Young took up a new challenge — the construction of a 21-foot by 15-foot fish pond.

"I dug out the pool by hand," Young said. "As I worked on the pool, I took photographs

ANNIVERSARIES

Farago - 50th

Helen and Zigmond Farago, of Goddard Road, Romulus, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary by renewing their marriage vows and attending a party.

The two were married July 16, 1939, in the Bowling Green, Ohio, courthouse. They are the parents of three children, Barbara, Donald and Richard. They also have four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The Faragos have lived in the community for 46 years.

The two renewed their vows at the Hungarian Reformed Church, in Allen Park. The ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Bertalan. The couple's original best man and bridesmaid participated in the ceremony.

An anniversary party was

also staged at the church. Donald Fargo served as master of ceremonies. Guests traveled from Florida, Canada, South Carolina, Ohio and throughout Michigan to attend the event.

Zigmond retired in 1972 from the Ford Motor Co. He and wife Helen enjoy bowling and gardening.

Porch - 50th

Steve and Esther Porch, of Karr Road, Belleville, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday during a special party staged in their honor.

The two were married Aug. 19, 1939, in Detroit. They have lived in the community for 47 years.

The couple's godchildren, Julianne Patrick and Diane Blomquist, are the hosts of the party, which will be staged at the home of Jerry and Diane Blomquist. Family members and friends from throughout Michigan and Florida are expected to attend.

Steve retired from the Ford

Ultimate cheesecake is apology

There are at least 32 local cooks who were ready to do me bodily harm last week when they attempted to make my all-time famous banana nut cheesecake (which has been a secret for 20 years) and couldn't figure out how to make the chocolate topping without any chocolate. It seems that I forgot to connect my fingers to my two remaining brain cells last week and instead of typing 1/3 cup milk chocolate pieces in the list of ingredients, typed only 1/3 cup milk.

Clearly, some type of penance is due and frankly, the only thing that can come close to the banana nut cheesecake (seriously, have you ever even heard of anything so wonderful?) is the chocolate caramel pecan recipe I've had hidden in the back of the family Bible for years. I had to put it there to keep my sister from finding it. I figured that would be one place she'd never look.

So, here it is, and if there are any mistakes...well, I have one more absolutely top secret recipe hidden in the back of an old metal trunk underneath my grown sons' baby clothes.

Chocolate caramel pecan cheesecake

For the crust:

- 2 cups vanilla wafer crumbs
- 6 tablespoons margarine, melted

Combine crumbs and margarine and press onto bottom of 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes.

For the filling:

- 1 14-ounce bag Kraft caramels
- 1 5-ounce can evaporated milk
- 1 cup chopped pecans, toasted
- 2 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces, melted

In 1 1/2 quart heavy saucepan, melt caramels with milk over low heat, stirring frequently, until smooth. Pour over crust. Top with pecans. Combine cream cheese, sugar and vanilla, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Blend in chocolate and pour over pecans. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Loosen cake from rim of pan and cool before removing rim. Chill. Garnish with whipped cream and additional finely chopped pecans, if desired.

Brownie swirl cheesecake

For the crust:

- 1 8-ounce package brownie mix

Grease bottom of 9-inch springform pan. Prepare basic brownie mix as directed on package. Pour batter evenly into springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.

For the filling:

- 2 8-ounce packages cream cheese
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup milk chocolate pieces, melted

Combine cream cheese, sugar and vanilla, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Pour over brownie layer. Spoon melted chocolate over cream cheese mixture and cut through batter with knife several times for marble effect. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes. Loosen cake from rim of pan and cool before removing rim of pan. Chill before serving.

Opa! Greek festival translates into the finest foods

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

It is not the ingredients or any particular style that sets most Greek recipes apart from others. Family tradition is what makes these recipes special.

Baklava, cheese pie, honey balls, nut baskets... and others in an endless array of homemade Greek specialties will be featured this weekend during the annual Greek "Opa" festival of the Hellenic Cultural Center, in Westland. The center is a part of the adjacent Sts. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, 36375 Joy Road, west of Wayne Road, Westland.

Preparations for the celebration of food has been in the works for several weeks. Last week, a group of parishioners gathered to prepare the theples - deep-fried pastries.

Theples are a perfect example of generations of family tradition combined with skill. Preparation involves an intricate process that does not allow for shortcuts. Nearly all of the women preparing the theples at St. Constantine learned the recipes from their mothers.

Basically, the dough for this pastry consists of six eggs, orange juice, flour and very little sugar. The dough is kneaded until it is easy to work with. Then, the fun begins.

The dough must be rolled to a paper-thin consistency. Usually, a long, narrow rolling pin - similar to a broom handle - is used.

Next, the thin dough is sectioned into small squares with a pastry cutter. Each square is dropped in a large pan of hot olive oil.

Another challenge. While the dough is frying, the cook must roll it with forks in jellyroll style. This process must be done quickly before the dough is too crispy.

A mixture of honey, water and cinnamon is drizzled on as a final step.

Helen Koustenis, of Livonia, discussed the theples as she fried them like an expert in the church kitchen.

"From one generation to another," she explained.

Already, Koustenis has taught her children the secret of the recipe.

In her family, Koustenis said, theples were prepared for special occasions, such as weddings, baptisms or holy days.

Even at home, at least two people are needed for the theples recipe. One person handles the kneading, rolling and cutting. The other fries the dough.

"You would have to be quite a whiz to do it alone," she laughed.

A good teacher, rather than a good recipe, is the key to successful Greek dishes, according to parishioner Ellen Harry, of Allen Park.

"If your mother was creative, that's how you learn," Harry explained.

Although most of the cooks admit that they do not rely on recipes, they have recorded instructions for numerous time-tested Greek treats in their own cookbook, Hellenic Cuisine. The book was released in 1957. Thirty years later, parishioners boast, demand for the book remains strong.

Many of the recipes below will be featured at the Greek festival this weekend. Festival hours are 4 to 10 p.m. Friday, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday.

Stuffed grape leaves (Dolmathes)

- 1 pound ground steak
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1/2 cup rice
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley and mint
- 50 grape leaves, fresh or canned
- 2 teaspoons salt
- Pepper to taste
- 3 tablespoons butter

Wash fresh leaves thoroughly. If canned leaves are to be used, rinse in water to remove excess brine.

For the filling, fry the chopped onion in melted butter until golden. Then mix with meat, rice and seasonings.

Take 1 teaspoon of filling and place in the center of 1 large leaf or 2 small ones, making sure that the shiny side of the leaf is underneath or on outside when rolled. Carefully fold over top and sides like an envelope and roll up like a minia-

Parishioners at Sts. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church have been preparing for weeks for the annual "opa! festival" they sponsor at the adjacent Greek Hellenic Cultural Center, in Westland. One of the most prized offerings at the festival, without a doubt, is the food, according to Helen Koustenis (above), a member. ANP photos by Werner Slocum/staff recorder

Making theples, step by step

It takes two people to create the time-tested treats. Start by mixing and working the dough.

Using a broom-handle-like rolling pin, carefully roll the dough into a paper-thin consistency. The dough will then be sectioned into squares.

After cutting and shaping small squares and deep-frying, the Greek treat you have will be simply scrumptious!

ture football. Place a few course leaves in bottom of a pot. Carefully arrange the balls on top, side by side and in layers until all filling and leaves are used. Add two cups of water and a little butter and salt.

Place a heavy plate on top and simmer for 1/2 hour - or longer if needed. Serve hot with egg and lemon sauce below.

Leaf lettuce may be substituted for the grape leaves. Wilt the lettuce in hot water and proceed with directions above for grape leaves.

Lemon sauce for dolmathes

- 3 eggs
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 5 or 6 tablespoons liquid from dolmathes

Beat eggs slightly. Add lemon juice. Beat well. Then pour into this sauce liquid from dolmathes, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating constantly. Pour over dolmathes and remove from fire at once.

Greek salad supreme (Psilokomeni)

- 1 clove garlic
- 1 head lettuce, shredded
- 1/2 bunch endive, shredded
- 3 tomatoes, quartered
- 1 cucumber, sliced
- 6 green onions, sliced
- 3 stalks celery, diced
- 1 green pepper, diced
- 6 radishes, sliced
- 1 carrot, shredded

- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- Olive oil
- Vinegar or lemon juice
- 1 sliced cooked beet
- 8 sliced feta cheese
- 8 ripe olives (Kalamata)
- 1/4 cup chick peas, (cooked)

Rub salad bowl with garlic. Combine next 11 ingredients and seasonings and toss with just enough oil to coat salad. Pour 1/4 as much vinegar as oil and toss lightly. Garnish with border of sliced beet and feta cheese. Arrange olives in center and sprinkle chick peas over all. Serves 8.

Greek cheese pie (Tyropita)

- 1 pound Greek feta cheese, crumbled
- 1 pound cottage cheese
- 8 eggs
- Salt
- White pepper
- 1/2 pound pastry sheets
- 1/2 pound butter (melted)
- 1/4 cup kefaloteri cheese, grated (optional)

Beat 4 whole eggs and add 4 eggs, yolks only. Beat until light and creamy. Fold into crumbled feta cheese, cottage cheese and grated kefaloteri cheese. Season to taste. Place 8 buttered pastry sheets on a greased baking pan and then pour cheese mixture. Cover with 8 additional pastry sheets, brushing each with melted butter. Fold edges to retain mixture and brush tyropita with melted butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Cut in squares and serve

Pastry rosettes (Theples)

- 6 eggs
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- Juice of 3 oranges
- 4 cups flour
- Cinnamon
- Chopped walnuts or chopped pistachio nuts
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 cups water

Beat eggs until light and fluffy and add orange juice, sugar and sufficient flour so the mixture may be handled without sticking. Turn dough onto a board and spread lightly with butter, a little at a time. Knead dough until it is smooth and soft. Cut dough into 4 parts. Roll 1 part on floured board until paper thin, keeping remainder of dough covered until ready to use to avoid drying. To form rosettes, cut dough in strips 2 by 16 inches. Drop one end of strip in hot oil, secure this end with the tongs of a fork. With a second fork, roll the rest of the strip around the first fork until the strip of dough is all rolled to form a rosette. Turn and brown both sides lightly. Drain on absorbent paper.

To prepare syrup, boil sugar and water, stir in honey to make a medium syrup. Dip the cool theples in the warm syrup. Sprinkle with cinnamon and chopped walnuts or chopped pistachio nuts. It is wise to pass a finger bowl and napkins with these pastries.

AMAZON: THRILL OF A LIFETIME

A journey into the Amazon River country is a thrill of a lifetime. The Amazon originates in Peru and flows into the Atlantic Ocean in Brazil at the equator. It is the world's largest fresh water system, draining an area of three million square miles and with its tributaries reaching into six South American countries.

Its widest point spans 40 miles and ocean-going vessels can travel 2300 miles from the Atlantic Ocean to the source of the Amazon in Iquitos, Peru, a major port on the Upper Amazon. The lush rain forest of the Amazon wilderness, one of the world's most important sources of life, contains more than 25,000 species of plants that have been identified and more are discovered every day. It is also rich in wildlife, with 8,600 species of birds.

Freshwater dolphins feed and play in the river shallows, and in the jungles are colorful tree frogs, huge iguanas, sloths, monkeys, and magnificently-colored insects.

Tours from Miami traveling from Rio to Manaus start as low as $1742.

BUSINESS NEWS DIGEST

Wayne business is recognized

Law Auto Sales Inc., of Wayne, was honored recently by Inc. Magazine as one of the 500 fastest-growing companies in the United States.

The company was chosen from a list of more than 17,000 candidates nationwide. Criteria included percentage of sale increases during the past five years and only independently-owned companies were eligible. The business ranked 414th with sales of $3.7 million and an increase in sales of 768 percent since 1983.

New facilities open at airport

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara recently dedicated constructed improvements to the international terminal at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. Cost of the project was nearly $13 million.

The facility has more than doubled in size to accommodate a new wave of international visitors to the area. Sixteen new inspection stations have been constructed and three secondary stations were added. Included in the addition are interview rooms, detention rooms, search rooms, computer rooms and administrative offices.

Military changes nurse age limit

Civilian nurses older than 35 years of age are now allowed to enter the U.S. Air Force, but those older than 40 must sign a statement citing they are ineligible for retirement.

In February, the air force surgeon general designated all nurses as "wartime critical." In the past, no one older than 35 was allowed to enter the service.

Doctors needed for Air Force

A special incentive pay to join the U.S. Air Force is being offered to physicians in fiscal year 1989. Needed are 200 physicians specializing in areas of surgery, urology, ophthalmology and otorhinolaryngology. Specialists in these areas with fewer than six years experience will receive $10,000. Those with six or more years experience will receive $16,000. Specialists in emergency medicine, radiology and psychiatry will receive $8,000 regardless of the experience.

For more information, call 561-7018.

Committee is reinstated

In light of recent train derailments in Highland Township and Freeland, state Rep. James Kosteva (D-Canton) has asked that the Transportation Subcommittee on Rail Safety be reinstated and that additional hearings be conducted.

The first hearing was staged for 7 p.m. Aug. 7 at Tittabawassee Township Community Hall, 220 Church St., Freeland. The event was a joint hearing with members of the House Conservation, Recreation and Environment Committee.

"I am interested in taking a look at the recent derailments and past accident reports to see if there is further need for legislative oversight in this arena," Kosteva said. "The recent derailments have also given us cause to reflect on the human impact cost that needs to be considered."

'It's in the mail' Area postal workers check to make sure

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

By the time a bill arrives in the mailbox, it has already been sorted, stacked, packed, sprayed and stuffed.

Automation plays a much larger role in mail sorting today, according to Susan Gillespie, communications manager of the Detroit Division of U.S. Postal Services. Nevertheless, one piece of first-class mail (a regular letter or post card) is likely to be handled by countless departments before reaching a final destination, Gillespie said. She outlined the voyage of a letter once it hits the bottom of a street mailbox.

Following a collection schedule, a postal carrier empties the box and brings the mail to a local office, such as the Wayne/Westland facility. There, the mail for Wayne and Westland is dumped into hampers where it will await a truck to Detroit. Canton Township mail remains at the local facility to be sorted.

Cancellation of stamps in Detroit begins in the mid-afternoon Monday through Saturday. From this point, most mail is sent through an assortment of processes. The multi-line optical character readers, for example, can "read" addresses and sort mail into trays.

Another machine process sprays letters with bar codes based on zip codes. Next, the bar codes are deciphered and mail is further sorted and stacked according to destinations. The bar-code sorting system for mail is new to the post office.

A large portion of the mail destined to travel 350 miles or more is taken to an airport facility.

Once the local mail is stacked, clerks place it in trays and send it back to the community post office.

There, the mail is sorted once again based upon the order of stops within a postal carrier's route.

In the local facilities, such as the Wayne/Westland branch, all sorting is done by hand. Manually, a clerk sorts approximately 1,000 pieces of mail each day, according to Mary Seymour, superintendent of postal operations for the Wayne/Westland branch. An automatic sorting machine, however, may sort as many as 36,000 pieces a day. Usually, 18 people operate such machines.

When sorting the "raw" Canton mail, clerks separate mail based on routes. Then the carriers sort the mail in order of deliveries.

"A lot of people think all carriers do is deliver," remarked Michael Taurence, superintendent for postal operations at the Wayne/Westland branch.

Depending on the number of residences within a route, along with the time of year, a postal carrier may deliver between 400 and 900 pieces of mail per day.

Traditionally, that number increases during Christmas season. Increases in the cost of postage, however, have drastically lessened the Christmas-card crunch, Taurence said.

Carriers are more likely to win when income tax or sweepstakes seasons arrive.

In addition to the traditional mail carrier, jobs within a local post office include window clerks, time keepers, sorting clerks, maintenance staff members and management.

Plus, some post offices have recently entered the retail business. The Wayne/Westland facility now has a Philatelic Center.

Bankers oppose automatic-teller machine bill

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Local bankers are skeptical about a proposal to ban user fees for automatic teller machines.

State Rep. Maxine Berman (D-Southfield) has introduced a bill that would abolish teller machine user fees, which usually range from 25 cents to $1, and often apply only to customers using a machine at a bank where they do not have an account.

Banks have coerced people into changing their banking habits and then have introduced fees, Berman said.

"It was a new, easy, convenient thing to do," Berman said. "Now it isn't free anymore."

The fees, Berman said, add up to nearly $100 per year for the average person, and represent too much of a burden on consumers.

"I think it's a basic unfairness," Berman said.

But bank and credit union officials in western Wayne County said Berman does not understand the costs they incur.

Ray Ream, manager of First of America, Wayne branch, said the banks do not make a profit from the fees.

"That's (fee) to cover the cost of transfer of the transaction from one bank to the next, so the banks don't make any money off that," Ream said.

Furthermore, Ream said, the federal reserve board charges banks an average of 40 cents per ATM transaction, which places a further burden on banks.

If banks were without the ability to charge fees, he said, consumers would pay the price.

"Banks wouldn't be as interested in placing ATMs in facilities around where the general public finds them more accessible," Ream said.

John Beach, chief executive officer of the Wayne-Westland Credit Union, said his non-profit operation would suffer from a ban on ATM fees.

"I don't think the general public or the (credit union) members are really aware of all the cost factors in it," Beach said.

Having an ATM is a major investment for the convenience of credit union members, Beach said.

"We need to cover our costs," he said. "How else are you going to cover the cost of the machine?"

But Berman said it is not necessary for banks and credit unions to cover costs by charging fees. She said banks have begun using steadily fewer tellers, and have cut costs through employee attrition.

'Marketplace' set to expand

A $3 million expansion, which will add 20 more stores to the 50-store Manufacturers Marketplace, is slated to open this fall in Monroe Township.

The developers expect the 100,000-square-foot addition to the factory outlet complex to be completed in November. The new mall will contain manufacturers' outlets similar to the 50 stores which comprise the present 150,000-square-foot marketplace, and the expanded facilities will follow the same Lake Erie-theme as the initial development.

Factory outlets such as American Tourister, Corning, Salem China, Maidenform, Tiffany Lamp, Banister Shoe, Van Heusen, Mushroom Shoe, Sportsland U.S.A. and West Point Pepperell are among the stores at the Monroe location. New tenants for the expanded area are Towle Silver 1690

House, Stone Mountain Handbags, Linmars, Vassarette, Captree, Specials Exclusively, Levi Strauss & Co., Dress Barn, Henson Kickernick, Sports Warehouse, Barbizon Lingerie and several others.

The new factory outlet stores will be constructed on land west of the present mall, located at I-75 and LaPlaisance Road in Monroe Township, and will be accessible from the parking lot area of the current site.

Shoppers from the western Wayne County area may reach the shopping center by driving south on Telegraph to the light at Dunbar Road in Monroe, left to LaPlaisance and right to the mall.

Horizon Group, Inc., the Muskegon-based owner of the factory outlet, also has malls at Birch Run and Holland, Mich., plus other sites in Indiana.

'Oprah Winfrey diet' is available locally

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

The diet program made famous by television talk show host Oprah Winfrey is now available locally through the Oakwood Westland Health Center, 32932 Warren Road, Westland.

The Optifast program combines a physician-supervised fast, behavior modification and exercise to help participants lose weight, according to Chris Cosnowski, director of the program.

"The program is only available to those who are considered morbidly obese," Cosnowski said.

To qualify, participants must be more than 50 pounds overweight or 30 percent more than their ideal body weight.

While promoting major weight loss, the program also helps reduce risk of diseases associated with obesity, such as heart disease, diabetes and high blood pressure, Cosnowski said.

The first 12 weeks of the 26-week program are a modified fast, Cosnowski said. Participants consume a special diet formula, which includes all necessary vitamins, protein and minerals.

"They drink it five times a day," Cosnowski explained.

The exercise portion of the program includes a light walking regimen - but not until the fifth week of the program.

"During the fasting, they are taking in fewer calories than their body is used to, so heavy exercise would not be recommended," Cosnowski said.

Group behavioral sessions focus on lifestyle changes, ways of coping with stress and weight loss and provide group support. Patients are also taught the nutritional value of food and how to shop and prepare meals.

"We can't guarantee that they will keep the weight off, but these sessions should help," Cosnowski said.

Currently, approximately 250,000 patients have completed the weight-loss program. Fees for the 26-week program are $2,600.

Approximately 40 people are participating at the Westland center, which opened in May, Cosnowski said. Most of the participants are women.

Wiley derails Ryan's title express Canton golfer captures his 3rd City Championship title

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

In his best performance in two years, Canton resident Matt Wiley fired a 2-under-par 70 Saturday and a 4-under-par 68 Sunday and coasted to a first-place finish in the 30th annual Associated Newspapers City Championship Golf Tournament last weekend.

Wiley, who did not compete last year, won the tournament in 1981 and 1985.

His performance Saturday, which included birdies on the first, fourth, seventh, ninth and 13th holes, left the other 59 golfers in the tournament fighting for second place. It would have taken a major collapse by Wiley and an outstanding round by someone else to catch the 32-year-old champion.

But the collapse didn't happen as Wiley birdied five holes and was 5-under-par on the 16th hole, finishing the tournament with a 138.

Kevin Ryan, of Inkster, shot an uncharacteristic first-round 84 and was never in contention after that. Ryan, who has won the city championship the past two years, finished with a two-day score of 166.

"It was the best golf I've played in two years," said Wiley, who has the Fellows Creek course record on the southwest course. "I made some good putts, something I haven't done in awhile. I hit 31 out of 36 greens and that is a lot of greens."

Wiley, a computer systems analyst for Modern Engineering, is a member of the Fellows Creek Publinx golf team. He also plays in numerous tournaments throughout the state.

"I was surprised I did that well," he said. "I haven't shot a 70 all year, and I was really surprised when I was 5-under-par at the 16th hole.

"I didn't practice all week. I played a few holes on Friday and decided to enter the tournament. It's a good tournament. Bill Hawley and Bill Whitworth do a great job organizing it every year."

Rain postponed the tournament twice Saturday, but golfers finished the first round. Skies were clear Sunday.

The tournament is sponsored each year by local parks and recreation departments in con-appearance in the golf tournament. He attributes his success to his father, Richard, and his golf coach, Dave Cisko.

Stu Martin, of Westland, finished third overall and first in Westland. He fired a 78 Saturday and a 76 Sunday for a two-day total of 154.

"I was happy with the way I played," he said. "I kept the ball in the fairways, but I couldn't make any putts."

Mark Morton, of Wayne, was fourth overall. He fired a first-round 76 Saturday and finished with an overall score of 155.

"I didn't play particularly well either day," Morton said. "I was trying to win the overall, but there was no way to catch Matt after his 70 and my 76 on Saturday."

Morton rallied Sunday to defeat former Wayne Memorial star Craig Klimczak, who shot a 75 Saturday. Klimczak led Morton by two strokes with four holes remaining.

"I shot a birdie on the 15th (hole) and he had a double-bogey," Morton said. "I then parred the 16th (hole) and he bogeyed. We both parred the 17th (hole), and I was able to win the Wayne title again. It was a lot of fun competing with Craig."

Doug Tompkins finished third in Wayne with a two-day score of 173.

Don Mullett fired a two-day score of 156 and finished second in Westland. Murray Brooks finished third in Westland with a two-day score of 156.

Bob Wanniger and Dan Trombla tied for second place in Canton with two-day scores of 157. Wanniger finished second in Canton last year with a 157.

Trombla fired a 79 Saturday and a 78 Sunday while Wanniger shot a 78 Saturday and a 79 Sunday.

Young golfer pulls upset

Todd Rakotz has been golfing since he "was 7 or 8-years-old", and on Sunday, the 16-year-old Romulus golfer catapulted into the limelight by winning the city of Romulus title by six strokes, defeating the two-time defending champ, Tom Singer.

Rakotz put together rounds of 78 and 73 to finish with an enviable 151 to capture his first city title and finish second in a field of about 70 amateur golfers at the 30th anniversary of the summer classic staged at Fellows Creek in Canton Township.

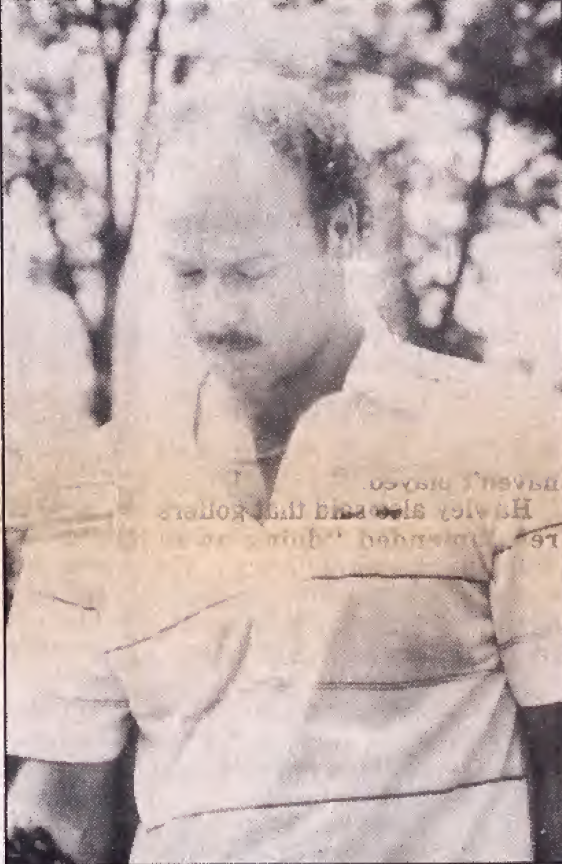

Rakotz, a junior this fall at St. Aquinas High School in Southgate, finished 13 strokes behind Canton Township's Matt Wiley, who claimed his third championship in five years with a 138.

Wiley put an abrupt end to Kevin Ryan's reign. Ryan, making a bid for his third straight championship, found himself in trouble from the opening swing. He finished with an 84 for the first round and managed to shave two strokes off that total in the final round for a two-day total of 166.

"I just wasn't mentally prepared to play today," Ryan said. "I could tell from that first swing, things weren't right."

If they weren't right for Ryan, they were for Rakotz who managed to handle the pressure and field like a pro.

Rakotz shot a 78 the first day and held a one-stroke lead over defending champ, Tom Singer, who was also seeking his third consecutive Romulus city title. Though Singer's game remained consistent in the finals,

Bidding for a third City Championship Golf Tournament title, defending champ Kevin Ryan (above) of Inkster got into early trouble and couldn't snap of it. Ryan's face displays the signs of frustration as he played a horrendous first nine holes and was never in contention the rest of the way. ANP photos by Patricia Douglas Rakotz stormed to a one-over-par 73 to seal the championship.

Rakotz tuned up for the city championship by playing in the 'Big I', the Insurance Classic, staged at Brae Burn Country Club where he finished runner-up.

Rakotz credited his play to the help given him by his father, Richard, and high school coach, David Cisko.

"They've helped me out a lot," Rakotz said. "I got to give them the credit."

With Rakotz and Singer forming the nucleus, the city of Romulus could send a strong team to the Michigan Recreation and Parks state championship which will be conducted Sept. 23 at Bender Park in Grand Rapids.

The city team is made up of the top five finishers in local competition. Joining Rakotz and Singer would be Terry Lemieux, who carded a 168 at Fellows Creek and finished third in the running. Then there are Doug Plant and Merle Kelley who turned in respectable 173 and 177 scores for the two-day, 36-hole tournament.

However, since Rakotz is a high school student, the Michigan High School Athletic Association, which governs high school athletics in the state, has stringent rules governing eligibility. Rakotz should check first to see if he can play at state in order not to jeopardize his eligibility.

With the exception of Ryan, the city of Inkster failed to put five golfers in the field this year.

Recreation officials said they have no explanation why local golfers have not competed in the summer classic.

"However, I believe one of State finals next

With the 30th City Championship Golf Tournament behind them, golfers may look forward to the 1989 Michigan Recreation and Parks state finals.

The state finals will be staged Sept. 23 at Bender Park in Battle Creek.

The top five finishers in the City Championships qualify to compete at state. However, recreation officials emphasize that a golfer representing a city must be a resident of that city (or township) and be able to verify it.

Golfers who have any questions or need further information about the state finals are asked to contact the recreation department in their respective city.

There were many surprises at the 30th City Championship Golf Championships, and one of the biggest was the performance of 16-year-old Todd Rakotz (photo at right, center) who defeated defending Romulus champ, Tom Singer (at left) who finished second in Romulus. Terry Lemieux finished third. In photo at left, the first and second place finishers were Keith Zaborski (at right) and John Sample. Not pictured is third-place finisher Jim Maye.
